MONTHLY REPORT | FACT SHEET

Fund Objective & Policy

To maximise long-term total returns, with a minimum objective to maintain the real purchasing power of Sterling capital, by investing globally in a wide range of financial assets with no limitations on the markets and sectors in which investment may be made. There is likely to be a bias towards equities and Sterling assets, consistent with a Sterling-dominated investment objective. Included in the range of assets are Lindsell Train managed funds and the unlisted security Lindsell Train Limited. #### Portfolio Manager's Comments

Back in 2019/20 Diageo CEO Sir Ivan Menezes, very sadly no longer with us, told us he had set a stretch goal for the company, of taking its share of the global TBA (total beverage alcohol) market from 4% in 2020 to 6% in 2030. That would be a 50% increase in share in a growing industry and struck us as a worthwhile, if ambitious, target. Particularly if it could be achieved without impairing Diageo's existing high rates of return (ROC 17%, ROE 48%).

We were impressed, therefore, to hear from Ivan's successor, Debra Crew, that by the close of its fiscal year 2022/3, as announced in its annual results in August, its share of global TBA had increased from 4% to 4.7%; well on the way to achieving the 2030 objective.

It is, we think, well worth considering Debra Crew's comments about the objective and the resources Diageo can bring to bear in achieving it. "Even as the leading company in international spirits," she said, "we are a relatively small player with a diversified geographic footprint and advantaged portfolio in a very large and attractive industry." In other words, Diageo, with great brands, global distribution and a strong balance sheet, likely has a long growth runway ahead of it.

It is also worth considering some of the company-specific qualities of Diageo that make its blue-sky goals achievable. First, note its revenues in 2022/3 are 30% higher than in 2019. Covid really gave a boost to existing trends in global beverage consumption, notably consumption of premium spirits. Diageo's "premium" sales now stand at 63% of total, up 7% since 2019. And its three biggest categories, which amount to c.50% of net sales, continue to grow well. Scotch is the largest and up 30% since 2019. In 2022/3 scotch sales grew another 12%, led by Johnnie Walker, up 15% and further reinforcing its position as the world's number one international spirits brand. Next is beer, which grew at 9%, led by Guinness at 16%. Guinness has just reported the single best year in its history and its prospects look brighter than ever. Third is tequila, where revenues have quadrupled since 2019 and grew 19% in 2022/3. Key brands Don Julio and Casamigos were up 20% and 16%, respectively. Diageo is global number one in tequila, with those two brands in the top two positions. The growth in tequila has, so far, been largely a US phenomenon. We like Debra Crew's call to arms: "My ambition is simple. I want to take tequila around the world. We are the people who have done that successfully with so many brands... And there is no one better placed to do it." To give that ambition more credibility, she noted that net tequila sales in Europe doubled last year, albeit from low levels.

Given these trends and Diageo's competitive advantages, we think its capital allocation policy is sensible. Debt was up £2.5bn last year to £15.2bn - 20% higher than 2019, though still at the bottom end of Diageo's target debt/EBITDA range (earnings are up 30% since 2019). Uses for that additional capital include capex (£1.2bn), laying down more stocks of precious maturing liquid, and the continuing buyback of shares. Diageo retired £1.4bn of stock in 2022/3 and announced a further £800m buyback for 2024. Evidently Diageo is both investing into its clear growth opportunity and, at the same time, taking advantage of its anomalously low share price (at least low in our minds). On that point, we note Diageo's decision to change its currency of formal account, from sterling to US dollars. It is doing so because the US represents a growing proportion of both Diageo's revenues (it is its biggest market) and its shareholder register. Around 45% of shareholders are US and, apart from Lindsell Train, there is no other active UK investor in the top-10 holders. Within that top-10, both the Bill Gates Foundation and Berkshire Hathaway sit as reassuring long-term and growth-oriented investors.

Diageo shares closed down 5% in August and are down over 10% year-to-date in Sterling. Short-term disappointment, as Covid sales growth slows, but on Bloomberg's estimated 19x 2024 earnings, full of promise and value, we hope.
